Canadian Oils Ltd. To Lease Sam's Service Station

Ed. McDonald Mentioned as Sub-Leasing Station From Oil Co.

Sam Moores, proprietor of Sam's Service Station, is contemplating leasing his business for a certain period of years to Canadian Oils Ltd. A number of companies made application for the lease, negotiations finally narrowing down to Canadian Oils Ltd., with whom Mr. Moores expects to sign papers within the next few days giving them the lease on his business.

He started his service station on August 15, 1927, and made a success of it from the first, gradually increasing his business until it became recognized as having the largest gasoline trade in Coleman. His son, Douglas, helped in the station until recently when he secured employment elsewhere. Mr. Moores does not anticipate leaving Coleman.

Ed. McDonald, of Crows Nest Pass Motors, Blairmore, has been prominently mentioned as sub-leasing the station from Canadian Oil, but in a telephone conversation with The Journal he refused to confirm the report, stating a statement at this time was too premature.

Tragic Death of William Liddle

Former Coleman Boy Killed in Auto Crash at Oxnard, Cal.

Old friends of Coleman learned with regret the tragic death of a former Coleman boy, William Liddle, aged 23 years, at Oxnard, California, on July 28, when a car driven by Liddle crashed into the rear end of a truck instantly killing him and a girl friend, Ruth Ellen Meckfessel, aged 18 years. Two others riding in the rumble seat received injuries.

He was the eldest son of Mr. and Mrs. A. E. Liddle, former Colemanites. They came from Saskatchewan to Coleman in 1920 where Mr. Liddle started a jeweler's store, selling it in 1922 to G. R. Powell. Besides his parents, a sister, Lorraine, and a brother, Raymond, survive the deceased.

Deceased was a football and track star and his passing has caused a major loss to sporting circles in Oxnard.

Local Stars Win Alberta Tennis Titles in Provincial Tournament

Shone Wins Visitors' Event; Shone-Jenkins Win Secondary Doubles; Balloch-Whitehead Lose Doubles Final After Four Hours Battle

Two Alberta tennis titles were brought to Coleman at the conclusion of the provincial tournament at Calgary on Sunday. Shone was a big winner with two titles, the Visitors' event, open to all competitors coming from any country point in Alberta, and the secondary men's doubles. The former event has been played for three years and has been won on each occasion by Coleman, Balloch winning the title the first year and Shone winning the past two successive years. Shone beat Lutes of Medicine Hat for the title.

Shone-Jenkins won the men's secondary doubles event with little trouble, their game being too fast for their opponents to compete against. Jenkins, in his singles event, lost to Dick Hincks in the final of the secondary singles after a stubborn battle. These two players met three times, Hincks winning twice while Jenkins won in the Ferris Cup. Jenkins won his way to the semi-final of the Ferris Cup only to lose to the ultimate winner of the event, Bob Wise, in two straight sets, 6-3, 9-7.

Balloch, after losing in three sets to Bill Stark, who retained his provincial title for the third straight year by defeating Whitehead in the finals in three sets, advanced to the semi-finals of the mixed doubles with Mari McInnes, of Calgary, where they were defeated 7-5, 6-1 by Gunn and Fisher, who went on to win the final and title. The men's doubles between Stark-Gunn versus Balloch-Whitehead, was the highlight of Sunday's play, the Calgary players finally winning out in five sets which took four hours to complete, the scores being 2-5, 4-6, 11-9, 11-9, 7-5. After winning the first two sets easily, Balloch and Whitehead seemed well on their way to victory. In the third set the game was marred when the umpire changed his original decision, giving Balloch-Whitehead the set at 7-5, and the match in three straight sets, to give Gunn-Stark the decision and prolong the game which finally went to the Calgary players.

The local players are to be congratulated on their performance since they get no outside competition during the season and have to play stroke for stroke with city players who have every chance of improving their game the season long by playing against a wide variety of players who happen to be staying in their city. Interest was exceptionally keen among local sportsmen who followed the local players' progress by press and radio.

Tourists Asked To Obey Park Laws

The Journal received a letter from Major G. H. Schoof, mounted constable at Waterton Lakes Park this week, in which he states he has been there four weeks patrolling the mountain lakes and prairie of Alberta and B. C. up to the Montana line. He writes:

"I find vacationists a good deal like children out of school. They break most of our fish, game, camping and fire laws; they throw away burning cigars and cigarettes; they leave fires smoldering; they tear down fish and game posters and speed on the narrow mountain roads. I could fine people every week from ten to five hundred dollars. I wish folks would read up on the fish, game and fire laws before starting on their trip, it would save them and me a lot of trouble."

"Wall Lake is still the best lake in all the Waterton district for fishing. Everyone gets their full allowance if they fish all day, 15 fish. Permits can be bought at the R. C. M. P. office at a cost of one dollar per day. The lake is in British Columbia, 14 miles from Park headquarters."

"There are more people in the park this year than ever before, American tourists state they like Waterton Park better than Glacier Park."

Miss Carmen Beck suffered a painful elbow fracture on Wednesday when she fell off her bicycle.

Chesterfield and Bedroom Suites Major Prizes—Special Entertainment Acts to Feature Carnival—Proceeds to Aid Worthy Community Enterprises.

"Bigger and better than ever," is the slogan of the local B. P. of Elks as they clear all decks in preparation for their carnival which they will stage at the arena on Sept. 4 and 6. Encouraged by winning the McIntyre trophy at the Elk's convention held at Sylvan Lake this year, for the lodge giving the best community service in the province of Alberta, the local committee are going to spare no expense in order to live up to their slogan.

There will be booths for young and old, including house-house, crown and anchor, tapestry, doll, blanket, slum, ham and bacon, etc. Jitney dancing with a popular orchestra playing all the latest music will be in attendance each evening.

Fully aware that carnivals have gone stale during the past two years, the Elks will give their patrons something original. While nothing has been decided definitely, it is expected that they will bring in entertainers to give special numbers on the dance floor both evenings. Old timers' orchestra, singers and specialty dancers being suggested.

To climax each evening's entertainment major prizes will be drawn for. On Saturday evening at mid-night a handsome 5 piece bedroom suite will be won by some lucky ticket holder. On Monday a beautiful 6-piece Chesterfield suite will be drawn for. Tickets for these major prizes are now on sale.

As in previous years all proceeds from the carnival will be used in aid of worthy community enterprises, and to bring joy to the kiddies and needy during Christmas season.

Doctor And Patient

A symposium of replies to a questionnaire sent out to doctors by the American Foundation on the availability of adequate medical care for the public generally, probably affords a key to the reason for the growing public demand for systems of state medicine or state health insurance.

The replies indicate that, in a broad sense, adequate medical care, no matter how conservatively the phrase is interpreted, is not generally available and certainly not as available as it should be, and for a number of reasons.

While the information and opinion secured is, of course, applicable to conditions in the United States, there is little doubt that it is equally applicable in Canada, and in some respects more particularly in Western Canada, where similar social and economic conditions exist to those on the other side of the international boundary.

That the problem of providing adequate medical care for the people is bounded by social and economic conditions is specifically revealed in the numerous replies received and it is because of this fact that public demand for state medicine is becoming such a prominent issue nowadays.

Quoting the Foundation's own summation of the replies to the question: "Is adequate medical care now readily available?" the Foundation points out that many agree there is no categorical answer to such a question because of disagreement as to its meaning. "But, if medical care is interpreted to mean the kind of care needed to enable citizens to maintain 'positive' health, preventing incipient illness from progressing to serious consequences, as well as doing all that can be done to restore the sick individual to health, the weight of opinion is certainly that adequate medical care is not available.

"Even if adequate medical care is less ambitiously defined," to further quote the Foundation's summary as reported in the current issue of the "Canadian Doctor," "this section contains a good deal of evidence in the form of statistics but of direct picture (by men on the scene) to justify the premise that a large part of the population does not receive adequate medical care.

"(a) because it costs too much, especially hospital service and the laboratory aids to diagnosis;

"(b) because it is too far away, as in the vast agricultural areas far removed from medical centres and without either hospitals or practitioners;

"(c) because the public generally does not understand and is not asking for modern scientific medical care, much of the population definitely preferring quacks, cultists and patent medicines, and, finally and most important;

"(d) because in the medical care of the present 'the best is not yet good enough', to cite many spokesmen.

"The reasons why medical care is not yet good enough are many, but these are the reasons most frequently brought forward by the physicians:

"(a) There is a lag of years in applying new medical knowledge;

"(b) present medical training is not yet uniformly good;

"(c) present licensing is too broad;

"(d) many graduates do not or cannot keep up their competence;

"(e) medical imagination still does not sufficiently perceive that prevention rather than cure is the real and ultimate goal of medical science, as many competent leaders of medical science in this discussion declare it to be."

In view of the fact that the foregoing conclusions represent the consensus of opinion of apparently a substantial cross section of the medical profession, considerable weight must be given to the information, but it should be pointed out that it does not necessarily coincide with the lay viewpoint in its entirety.

When for instance the medical men declare that a large percentage of the population does not receive adequate medical care "because the public generally does not understand and is not asking for modern scientific medical care," they are making a statement which is open to debate.

It could very well be argued that a substantial percentage of the public does not understand modern medical science, not because of any lack of desire to do so, but because there are yet too many doctors who adhere to the old fashioned doctrine that the less the patient is told the better and it is not surprising if, under such circumstances, patients fall back on the too valuable quack for remedy.

In the minds of the public the practice of medicine is often too much shrouded in mystery which might be dispelled if more doctors took the patient into their confidence when making a diagnosis and wrote their prescriptions in a form which could be understood by a layman.

After all no person has a greater right to know what is wrong with him or her, to know what the doctor believes to be the cause of the ailment and the remedy that is being prescribed than the patient who is paying or "owing" for the service.

Sometimes a little more explanation of causes, conditions and treatment would create a greater public confidence which would yield dividends to the "regular" medical profession.

The dahlia has been grown as a garden flower for about 100 years. However, the most popular variety the Cactus, did not appear until about 1850. A more recent type the Collarette, which is still unknown to many people, was introduced about 1900, and the Pacony-flowered variety not until 1908.

Where Law Is Helpless

Impossible To Force Any Person To Be Sensitive

A case, the first of its kind, was tried in a Montreal court when a taxi driver was charged with leaving his car unlocked while on a city street. The charge was laid to test a statute in effect some years but only recently brought into force at request of automobile insurance companies to help halt car thefts. The accused was acquitted; so that evidently disposes of the statute.

It has been said that it is impossible to make people good by law; and apparently the law, speaking through this Montreal court, says it is useless to try to make people sensitive by law. For one would hardly think a law would be needed to teach anyone that to lock a car is only ordinary common sense. Nobody with an ounce of brain would think of leaving a trunk or a suitcase on the sidewalk in a city with no one to watch it. Yet men, otherwise apparently sane, seem to think nothing of leaving valuable cars with the doors unlocked and the key in the ignition, inviting the first thief who happens along to drive off with it.

Police records all agree that locked cars are seldom, if ever, molested; and the reason for that is plain. To be seen trying to open a locked door immediately arouses suspicion, while no one pays much attention if he sees a man step into a car and drive off.

But, according to the Montreal court's ruling, the people of Quebec are to be allowed to make fools of themselves if they want to.

All the same, a law against leaving open cars sitting about would be useful in that it would make the owner liable through his negligence to pay the cost of recovering his car when it is stolen.—Owen Sound Sun Times.

Trying To Salvage Ship

Believed To Have Foundered In Lake Huron In 1679

Robert Cavellier, Sieur de La Salle's Griffin—the "Flying Dutchman" of the Great Lakes—may sail again, if the expedition planned by a Chicago yachtsman and explorer meets with success.

Eugene F. McDonald's Diesel yacht was loaded with diving and salvage equipment for a cruise to the western end of Manitoulin Island in Lake Huron where the pioneer explorer's ship—reported to be the first to ply the lakes—was believed to have sunk in 1679.

La Salle and Henri De Tonti built the Griffin at the head of Lake Erie in May, 1679. They sailed to what is now Green Bay, Wis., where the ship was laden with 12,000 furs. La Salle sent them to friends who helped finance his explorations.

But the Griffin never reached port. Lake authorities—and McDonald, who said he had studied all available evidence—believe she foundered off Manitoulin.

Old sailors say the Griffin sails each year when the lotus blooms. They say she is recognized by the eagle-headed, lion bodied Griffin figurehead protruding from her prow.

McDonald said he planned to anchor off the island, where he would meet Grant Turner of Little Current, Ont., since the Canadian Government granted him permission for the search provided a Canadian citizen accompanied him.

If the Griffin is found, McDonald said, efforts will be made to reconstruct the old ship so that she can sail along the Chicago waterfront during the city's jubilee carnival of the lakes.

Traffic Control For Planes

Vancouver Airport Has Installed Traffic Control Projector

Among recent additions to the Vancouver airport is an airport traffic control projector, one of the latest safety devices put on the market. Familiarly termed "traffic guns," lights of this type are used at all the leading United States airports for day and night control of aircraft not equipped with radio.

Although fitted with only a 50 candlepower lamp, the light is visible in bright sunlight for over three miles. The light is sighted like a gun and can also be used for code signalling with white, red or green light, as a spotlight, and for making estimates of the cloud ceiling at night.

This "projector" is believed to be the first of its kind used in Canada and became necessary through the steady increase of traffic at the airport.—Canadian Aviation.

Roads Of The World

Ford Has On Exhibit Materials From 18 Famous Highways

In the grounds of the Ford Rotunda at Dearborn, Michigan, the "Roads of the World," comprising materials from eighteen famous highways, has been opened to the public. The materials consist of stones, slabs and soil.

The dedication of the "roads" was witnessed by consular officers of countries represented in the roads, also many good roads officials.

Among the representations are the Appian Way, the famous Roman highway; the "Summer Palace" Road over which the Manchu emperors rolled from the old capital in what is to-day modern Peking to the royal Summer Palace; the ancient Grand Trunk Road of India, whose northern reaches led through the fabled Khyber Pass, and the Diamond Road of South Africa, over which Cecil Rhodes transported fortunes in diamonds from the De Beers mines to Port Elizabeth.

Naval Treaty Ratified

Provisions Of 1936 London Agreement Have Become Effective

Provisions of the 1936 London naval treaty became effective with the ratification by the United Kingdom, Canada, Australia, New Zealand and India.

Instruments of ratification were deposited at the foreign office. Sir Robert V. Stittart, permanent under-secretary for foreign affairs, signed for the United Kingdom; Sir Findlater Stewart, permanent under-secretary for India, for India; High Commissioner Vincent Massey for Canada; High Commissioner Stanley Bruce for Australia; and High Commissioner W. J. Jordan for New Zealand.

The United States deposited ratification a year ago and France a few weeks ago. The treaty limits the size of armament but not the number of naval vessels and provides for an interchange of information regarding projected naval construction.

Remarkable Facts About Family Of 97-Year-Old Woman

Mrs. Anna Pond, of Waterford, Ont., is 97 years of age. She reads a good deal, and prefers newspapers because they come fresh each day. Mrs. Pond has no time for worrying and cannot be convinced that it ever did any good anyway. If the weather is favorable this lady of 97 goes to church on Sunday and she also likes to attend Sunday school. What's more she walks. But says: "All of which is interesting but not so remarkable as other facts regarding her family. Mrs. Pond is the mother of 11 children and they are all living, and she herself is the eldest of a family of four and her two sisters are also alive. Their ages being 89, 82 and 86.

We cannot recall having read or heard of another case like that. A woman of 97 with 11 children living, and with all her own generation still here.—Peterboro Examiner.

Output Being Increased

New Equipment Has Been Installed At Ontario Radium Refinery

Dr. Marcel Pochon, director of the Ontario radium refinery at Port Hope, announced that the annual output at the refinery would be increased from one and a half ounces to four and one half (126 grams).

Dr. Pochon made the announcement following consultations with officials at the national research council at Ottawa, to which new equipment the refinery had purchased was sent for testing purposes.

The new equipment, Dr. Pochon said, would make it possible to supply some of the radium needs in the United States as well as in the British Empire which up to now has absorbed almost all the Canadian output.

Rt. Hon. R. B. Bennett To Continue as Leader Of Conservative Party

Ottawa.—Improved in health, Conservative Leader R. B. Bennett is willing to continue to devote his life to public service. He remains leader of the party and the immediate question of leadership is thus settled.

Such was the information released at the conclusion of an all-day caucus of Conservative members of the House of Commons here Saturday. The members had been called together by Mr. Bennett to learn of his views and feelings regarding continuance at the head of the party.

The only official statement from the meeting was the text of a resolution adopted unanimously which made no direct mention of the leadership or of party organization.

The resolution was:

"This meeting of Conservative members of the House of Commons, assembled to greet our chief, Rt. Hon. R. B. Bennett, on his return from Europe, records its profound pleasure to learn of his improved state of health and of his willingness to devote his remarkable ability, great experience and unequalled knowledge of public problems to the service of the Canadian people."

Organization matters were also discussed at length, according to R. S. White, veteran member for St. Antoine—Westmount, Montreal, who served as spokesman. Matters of policy were not touched upon, nor was the possible provincial election in Ontario mentioned. The meeting was "harmonious and enthusiastic throughout."

The meeting appointed committees to get a nation-wide organization under way and start the work of preparing for the next general election. Committees will function in every province and eventually the organization will be centralized under a national office in Ottawa, although details of the latter phase of the matter were not settled.

Only two of the 39 Conservative members were absent, Mrs. George Black of Yukon, and Dr. S. F. Tolmie of Victoria. Dr. Tolmie has been ill for some time and Mrs. Black found the distance from her far northern constituency too great for a misadventure trip.

Although the meeting settled one question concerning the party, it left other outstanding questions still in the air. The one definite conclusion was that Mr. Bennett will remain leader for the time being and that organization work will proceed under his leadership.

There was no word as to whether Mr. Bennett is to continue indefinitely or whether he still contemplates the possibility of retiring in the middle or distant future. Neither were any decisions reached on the policy the party will pursue in parliament at the next session or the platform it will lay before the people at the next election.

The meeting was held on the seventh anniversary of Mr. Bennett's entry into office as prime minister following his victory at the 1930 general election. He has been leader for 10 years and is 67 years old. For five of his 10 years at the head of the party he was prime minister.

Penetration In China

Japanese Reported To Be Widening Their Operations

Nanking.—An official Japanese intimation that the undeclared Japanese-Chinese war might be extended as far as the Yellow river was received here by foreign diplomats. They also read the latest public declaration of General Chiang Kai-Shek, military and political head of the Chinese government, that China will yield no more territory to Japan "even though that means fighting inadequately prepared and to the death."

Foreign consuls at Tientsin reported the Japanese consul-general there had called on their senior member at the instance of the Japanese army to make this declaration.

"The continued concentration of Chinese troops north of the Yellow river means hostilities in that region and therefore the Japanese military suggests that foreigners in that area be warned accordingly."

Consuls at Tsinan Fu, capital of Shantung province, which lies in the Yellow river, have advised foreigners in the interior of the province to concentrate preferably at the port of Tangtao in view of the seriousness of the situation.

If the Japanese do establish the Yellow river as the boundary of their penetration into North China it will mean extension of their area of operations some 300 miles to the west, about 350 miles to the southwest and about 150 miles to the southeast. Conquest of all territory north and east of the Yellow river would enlarge the area they dominate in North China four or five fold.

Such conquests would give Japan control of most of the five provinces previously named in Japanese plans for an autonomous regime in North China, Hopei, Chahar, Suiyuan, Shansi and Shantung.

Ruthless Warfare

American Writer Gives Some Side-lights On Chinese Situation

Peking.—An American writer and his wife reached Peking from a Buddhist temple refuge with a story of ruthless warfare.

Mr. and Mrs. Gene Lamb, of Washington, had been isolated in the temple, northwest of Peking, since the outbreak of Chinese-Japanese hostilities in the area.

Lamb said: "A Japanese motorized brigade came in from Manchoukio. They had hundreds of tanks. They went through the Chinese troops like a scythe through wheat."

"We saw them bombard Hsuyuan, but they didn't stop with that. Their aeroplanes zoomed over, spitting machine-gun bullets at helpless Chinese there and in nearby villages."

"Saturday, Japanese troops invaded my compound. The American flag was flying over it, but they paid no attention to that."

"They took our food and anything they thought might be valuable, including $300 mex."

China Plans Blockade

Foohow, China.—Port authorities here were reported to have arranged to sink ships in the mouth of the Ming River as a blockade against a feared Japanese naval attack.

To Stop Court Tests

Bill Is Introduced In Alberta Legislature

Edmonton.—An attempt to stop court tests of Alberta legislation was made when Attorney-General John Huggill introduced a bill in the provincial legislature.

The bill, one of the most far-reaching in Canadian history, would require the permission of the Alberta government if the constitutionality of any law was attacked in a court. It applies, of course, only to the courts of Alberta and would not stop a test case in the supreme court of Canada.

Direct appeals can be made to the supreme court by leave of the court. This is one of its functions specified in statutes. The federal government often refers constitutional questions direct without having the case heard in a lower court.

Barricades Of Peace

Britain's Diplomacy May Avert Another European War

London.—On the 23rd anniversary of war Great Britain is pushing her efforts to build up barricades of peace. While defensive rearmament continues apace, the nation's leaders seek through diplomacy to avert another European holocaust.

More than 122 blast furnaces throughout the country are in full production, turning out steel for warships and guns. Urgent appeals for scrapiron have been issued and an intensified campaign is being waged from attic to garbage can to salvage the now precious metal.

FASHIONS IN THE ROCKIES

In all the glories which surrounded the redmen of 1877, Chief Jacob Two-Young-Men surveys the mountains which his father roamed in absolute freedom as a boy. He is shown in the costume which brought him first prize during the Banff Indian Day celebrations, which featured a commemorative luncheon between chieftains of five Western tribes who signed the Government treaty of peace in 1877, abolishing all tribal wars.

Formal Assent Given Social Credit Measures By Lieut.-Governor

Edmonton.—The special session of the Alberta legislature convened to vest control of banking in the Alberta government was prorogued by Lieutenant-Governor John Bowen.

Formal assent to the Social Credit legislation was given by the lieutenant-governor, removing all doubt of his reservation of signing the bills pending appeal to constitutional authorities at Ottawa.

There was not the slightest delay in assenting to the bill to license and control bankers in the province. Provincial treasurer Solon Low told the legislature in moving second reading of the bill that it was designed to place the people of Alberta in control of the financial policies of banks operating in the province.

The session lasted only four days but more drastic legislation was passed in that time than probably in any similar period in the history of any Canadian province.

The following are tabloid descriptions of the major enactments:

An act empowering the government to deposit Alberta funds in any provincial institution, not necessarily a chartered bank as formerly stipulated. The purpose was to deposit money in a state credit house.

An act giving wide powers to the Social Credit board, a five-man board which has been operating since April with the assistance of two technical men nominated by Major C. H. Douglas, founder of social credit, originally introduced, the board was given unlimited power to "do such acts and things as it may from time to time deem proper, for the purpose of promoting, conserving and enhancing the social credit of the province."

This was amended to make the board's activities subject to the approval of the cabinet. Another clause of the original bill empowering the board to take any steps "for making available the credit of Alberta for the people of the province."

An act barring any unlicensed bank employee from "bringing, maintaining or defending any action in any court of civil jurisdiction in the province which has as its object the enforcement of any claim either in law or equity."

An act to license bankers and gain control of banking policies in the province. This was the major enactment of the session and was considered likely to lead to the widest repercussions of any provincial statute in Canadian history. It would require bankers—although operating under charters granted by the Dominion—to take out licenses in Alberta and subject their policies to the control of the provincial credit commission and local directorates dominated by appointees of the Social Credit board.

Bank licenses, which might cost as high as $100 for every branch manager and $5 for every employee, must be taken out within 21 days of today (Aug. 27). Bankers would undertake "to refrain from acting or assisting or encouraging any person or persons to act in a manner which restricts or interferes with the property and civil rights of any person or persons within the province."

Licenses could be revoked or cancelled by the credit commission. Local directorates, five-man boards with three appointees of the Social Credit board and two representatives of the banker, would "supervise, direct and control the policy of the banker" for the purpose of preventing any act by such banker or any employee or employees thereof constituting a restriction or interference, either direct or indirect, with the full enjoyment of property and civil rights by any person within the province."

Unlicensed bankers could be fined from $5,000 to $10,000 and courts would be closed to them. The credit commission would have power to pass regulations which must be observed by bankers. An act barring any person from testing the constitutionality of Alberta statutes in the court of the province.

Western Crop Report

Harvesting Becoming General In Prairie Provinces

Ottawa.—Crops are maturing rapidly over the prairies and with harvesting already started the 1937 season will probably equal the record for earliness established a year ago, said a crop report issued by the Dominion bureau of statistics.

No material change is apparent in the general condition from last week, the report stated.

Heavy rains have caused considerable lodging of grain in southern Manitoba. Except for late fields, rust will not seriously affect the wheat crop in that province since the infection developed too late to cause much damage.

"The outlook for the province is expected to be above average," the report said.

Some further deterioration has occurred in crops in northeastern Saskatchewan as a result of continued dry weather while in the northwest corner, recent rains have stimulated late crops and improved feed prospects. At best, wheat yields in the province will be low with a great part of the acreage yielding nothing but feed.

Crops are maturing rapidly in Alberta where July rains replenished soil moisture reserves and gave new life to crops which showed little promise beforehand. While yields will be below average, fairly good commercial crops are in prospect over much of the province.

Hail has caused losses at a number of points in the three provinces and while serious in localized areas, the damage on the whole has not been unduly heavy. Grasshoppers, army worms and wheat stem sawflies have all taken toll of crops with a possibility of the latter doing considerable damage in southern and east-central Alberta.

With harvesting fairly general throughout the province, Manitoba crops will soon be beyond danger of further menace from rust, insect pests, or inclement weather conditions.

Had Talk With Gandhi

Viceroy Of India Discussed Politics With Congress Leader

Smala, India. The Marquess of Lintihough, viceroy of India, and Mohandas K. Gandhi, a leader of the Indian Congress party, met for the first time and discussed acute political problems of the country.

The Associated Press reported it was believed the viceroy sought to learn the attitude of the Congress party toward a proposed visit next year by King George VI. for a coronation durbar at which he would be crowned emperor of India.

The Congress party has not rescinded resolutions in which it declined to take part in such celebrations. The Associated Press said it was pointed out that a visit by the king would be impossible if a majority of the provinces were ruled by cabinets which refused to take part in welcomes or to allot the necessary funds for festivities.

Selasie Memoirs

Will Not Be Published Just Now For Political Reasons

London.—Emperor Haile Selassie will not publish his memoirs, it was disclosed.

Michael Joseph, the Ethiopian emperor's publisher, announced the negus had withdrawn his autobiography from planned publication "on the advice of his political advisers."

What the advice was or who gave it was not disclosed. Authoritative quarters, however, expressed the belief the British foreign office had hinted that the memoirs—which were understood to deal fully with the Italo-Ethiopian war and its aftermath—should not be published at present.

Great Britain and Italy, after two years of ill feeling, exchanged olive branches recently in mutual letters of friendship between Premier Mussolini and Prime Minister Chamberlain.

A recent visit to Northern Ireland by the King and Queen was marked by an outburst of terrorism, mostly incendiary and bombing, which authorities attributed to extremist Republicans.

Dominion Housing Act Loans For July Show Satisfactory Increase

Ottawa.—Loans under the Dominion housing act in July exceeded those in any month since the act was passed, Hon. C. A. Dunning, minister of finance, announced. In 207 loans a total sum of $1,036,493 was put out to provide housing accommodation for 247 families. The average loan per family unit was $4,196.

Compared with the peak month of 1936, the loans made in July this year increased by over 100 per cent. in number and nearly 50 per cent. in total amount.

Total loans to date indicate $9,835,759 has been borrowed under the act, providing housing accommodation for 2,247 families. During the year ending July 31, 1937, nearly $7,000,000 housing act loans were made, providing accommodation for 1,674 families.

Despite rising building costs, the average loan per family unit has been steadily dropping. As at July 31, 1936, the average was $5,067. As at July 31, 1937, this average had fallen to $4,377, and the average loan during the month of July was only $4,196.

This steady decline in the average size of loan and the increasing number of loans in amounts of from $1,700 to $3,000 indicates the growing extent to which the act is being made use of to finance the erection of low cost homes.

Distribution of loans to date by provinces, with number and amount, follows: Prince Edward Island, 9, $50,034; Nova Scotia, 206, $915,371; New Brunswick, 36, $156,659; Ontario, 697, $4,440,176; Quebec, 408, $3,557,977; Manitoba, 29, $207,444; Saskatchewan, 2, $3,200; Alberta, nil; British Columbia, 116, $531,478.

NOTES ON OUR TRAVELS

On Board S. S. "Noronic" Lake Huron, Aug. 5, 1937

Leaving Coleman on Aug. 2, one's first impression as he journeys by the C.P.R. eastward are the fine crops noticed on the farms in the foothills areas, and also the "Garden-of-Eden" like appearance of the irrigated area further east around and beyond Lethbridge. The contrast between irrigated and non-irrigated land is quickly noticed as one travels further eastward, and the scene remains in the memory as one rolls on for hour after hour over the desert-like areas of Southern Saskatchewan.

The Palliser survey of 1856 mapped out a huge tract of land covering the whole of southern Saskatchewan, stretching down into the Dakotas, and taking in part of eastern and southern Alberta, and a portion of southwestern Manitoba, which was described as dry, short grass land. This is known to-day as the Palliser triangle.

Palliser's warnings that this area was unsuitable for agricultural pursuits went unheeded. The land, first used as grazing land, was split up into homesteading land and settlement increased. For a number of years good crops were produced, and in fact some farmers became fairly wealthy. But since 1915 wet years have been abnormal, and dry years have become normal, with the result that those who were once considered well off are, in many instances, to-day receiving relief. The problem as to what policy to follow is one that is seriously engaging the closest study of Federal government cabinet ministers and their departmental aides.

Proceeding on towards that gateway of the west—Winnipeg—evidence of greater fertility is noticed in the market gardens close to the city, and further east the good stands of grain. One realizes how unevenly the good things are distributed, even by Nature.

Some towns take advantage of their location to interest the visitor and those who may pass through. This is a very evident fact at Kenora, Ontario, more familiarly known to older people as Rat Portage. The C.P.R. train on its trans-Canada run stops there for fifteen minutes, and the place appears as a fairyland with thousands of colored electric lamps festooned across the streets. Many Winnipeg people make it their resort during the summer months, and the enchanting appearance of the place at night gives one a very good impression of its attractions and hospitality.

Arriving at the twin cities of Fort William and Port Arthur usually gives those who love the water a sense of satisfaction and pleasure in looking forward to a two days journey over this vast inland waterways of the Great Lakes. Immense elevators, holding millions of bushels of western grain, brought in by long strings of freight cars, discharge their contents into great whale-like looking lake freighters for trans-shipment to eastern ports. Fine passenger steamers of the Great Lakes Service of the Canadian Pacific Railway and the Canada Steamship Lines make twice a week calls, and at this time of the year lake travel is very brisk, one steamer having brought in over 500 passengers in a trip just before we arrived, and on its return journey it carried nearly as many.

Nearly a day was spent in Port Arthur before our steamer sounded its deep booming siren and cast off. Leaving at 4 p.m., on the "Noronic," a palatial steamer of the Canada Steamship Lines, closely followed by the "Assiniboia" of the Canadian Pacific Great Lakes Service, a smooth run was made during the night to Sault Ste. Marie. Throughout the night the lights of the "Assiniboia" could be seen a few miles astern, and she followed the "Noronic" into the locks at the "Soo." Here the ships are lowered 27 feet from the level of Lake Superior to that of Lake Huron in a few minutes.

The writer got a mild thrill and a near disappointment at the "Soo." The ship was late in reaching there, owing to its departure having been delayed three hours from its regular schedule at Port Arthur.

In consequence its time at the "Soo" was cut short. We decided to go up town and call on the editor of the Daily Star, whose newspaper stories of timber wolves have helped to place the city on the map. Expecting that the boat would give a fifteen minute warning by a long loud blast, we made our call somewhat leisurely, and returning towards the ship less than thirty minutes after leaving it, a taxi man, very alert, stated: "Are you fellows going on that boat? If you are, you'd better hurry, she's already left shore." With a friend who had accompanied us, we were into that taxi like lightning, headed for the ship's side, and sure enough, she was almost twelve feet from the wharf, slowly moving. Somebody shouted, from an open entry in the side of the ship, to jump. Now twelve feet may be easy to an athlete, but not to we two, who would have required two jumps to cover the gap, with the possibility of leaving our wives to collect the life insurance.

Then one of the crew shoved out a six inch plank, none too secure a footing when one end of it was slowly moving. However, we walked that plank as rapidly and at the same time as carefully as we ever walked, and gave a gasp of re-

Seagram Gold Cup

International Golf Match At Toronto September 7

Preparations are almost completed for the first international team match between the Professional Golfers' Association of the United States and Canada. This will be played at the St. Andrews Club, Toronto, on Tuesday, September 7, and will be almost similar to the Ryder cup matches between the United States and Great Britain. The latter is decided by four foursomes and eight singles, each over 36 holes, while the U.S.-Canada match will be decided in one day. There will be ten foursomes and five four-ball matches.

The U.S. has already won one international team match this year, defeating Great Britain in the Ryder cup, at Southport, England, and there will be but one or two changes in that team. In all probability a couple of foreign-born pros will be added to the U.S. Ryder cup team.

The Canadian P.G.A. has decided that the first five players in the Canadian professional championship will be invited to be members of the team. This championship will be decided at the Ottawa Hunt Club over the 72 hole tournament during the third week in August. The other five places will be filled by players selected on their performances in other competitions during this and past seasons.

It will be seen that both the United States and Canada will be represented by their strongest possible teams and therefore, the field for the Canadian open championship will be exceptionally strong. The team match will be a great curtain-raiser for the 72 hole struggle for the Canadian title, the Seagram Gold Cup, and the first prize of $1,000.

Last year the Seagram Gold Cup was won by Lawson Little playing in his first season after leaving the amateur ranks. It would be a feather in any amateur's wing to finish well up in this year's strong field for the Canadian open title and the trophy one of the finest rewards in golf throughout the world.

EARLY SIGNS OF CANCER

There is nothing so important to the man or woman of 35 years and over, as a knowledge of the early signs of cancer. Such knowledge is readily acquired by the average person of intelligence. What are the early signs of cancer?

Pain is not an early sign of cancer. It is a great pity that all beginning cancers had not the pain of an aching tooth. In such case the pain would drive the person to seek advice. The early signs of cancer may be grouped under the heads of: lumps, bleedings, persistent sores, hoarseness of a chronic nature, difficulty in swallowing, change of regular habits in respect to digestion or movement of the bowels.

A familiar example of a lump that may be a cancer is one appearing in the breast of a woman. Such a lump should be discovered by the woman herself when it is the size of a pea.

Often the woman does find the lump at this stage, but through modesty, fear or for some reason, says nothing about it until the lump is as large as a walnut or until other lumps appear under the arm-pit.

Irregular bleedings may appear from any of the crevices of the body. Especially significant are bleedings occurring in woman a year or more following the menopause. Persistent sores are frequently seen on face and hands, on the lips, on the tongue, inside the mouth or throat. They are manifested in black or yellow scabs on the faces of elderly men and women; they occasionally appear in the character of an over-head wound, in what is called a keloid. Not all of them are cancers; in some cases they are pre-cancerous conditions.

They are plain to be seen. All of us who are observant, see these early signs every day of our lives. Chronic hoarseness is usually due to syphilis, tuberculosis or cancer of the larynx. Difficulty in swallowing frequently means cancer of the oesophagus or swallowing tube.

The person who previously has had excellent digestion and begins to have dyspepsia, or the chronic sufferer from indigestion who shows a marked change of habit in this condition, may have early cancer. Similarly the persons who become constipated after a life of regular bowel habits or who becomes the subject of diarrhoea, may have cancer of the bowel as a cause. All these early signs of cancer merit our attention, should have the closest investigation.

Some Compensation

Archbishop of Canterbury Received Kind Letter From Old Lady

An explanation for the popular conception he had "fumbled" the crown during the coronation ceremony was made by the Archbishop of Canterbury at a banquet of the Society of Knights Bachelor.

The Archbishop declared: "I could make a most sincere apology for that performance, but it brought some compensation in the form of a letter from an old lady who said, 'the most beautiful thing in the coronation was to see the dear Archbishop blessing the four corners of the crown before he put it on the King's head.'"

Five Mistakes People Make

(1) The delusion that individual advancement is made by crushing others down.

(2) The tendency to worry about things that cannot be changed or corrected.

(3) Insisting that a thing is impossible because we ourselves cannot accomplish it.

(4) Attempting to compel other persons to believe and live as we do.

(5) Refusing to set aside trivial preferences, in order that important things may be accomplished.

Takes Outstanding Pictures

Kansas Girl Spends Weeks Getting Shot Of Wild Duck

Though a hopeless shot with a gun, and faced with conditions that would demand the hardest duck hunter, vivacious Lorene Squire, official photographer for the American Wild Life Institute, thinks nothing of spending three weeks in a soggy marsh waiting for one good camera "shot" of a wild duck.

Tamed to a deep broom by a month's outing in northern Saskatchewan, where she obtained many bird life photos, Miss Squire recently passed through Winnipeg on her way to northern Manitoba marsh area.

"It has always been my ambition to come to Canada to see the ducks in their nesting grounds. Now I have, and have some good pictures of baby ducks swimming about on the water," Miss Squire said.

Her career as a photographer started ten years ago in Kansas when she went duck hunting with her father and mother. "I was pretty terrible with a gun, so I began shooting with a camera." The result has been a series of outstanding pictures of wild life on the wing.

"It's hard work," said the young Kansan. "About only five out of a hundred pictures are successful. I spend days in the darkness getting the effect I want." She uses a miniature reflex with 15 centimetre telephoto lenses.

The young girl, a graduate of Kansas University, came to Canada as the result of communications with the officers of the Alberta, Saskatchewan and Manitoba Game and Fish Associations. She intended to spend about a month in Manitoba before travelling westward again to the Fort Chipewyan area.

Library For Empire Films

Toronto Has Been Tentatively Chosen As Distributing Depot

Toronto has been tentatively selected as the central clearing and distributing depot for the Empire Film Library of the Overseas League which is extending its activities throughout Canada.

John G. Bridges, development secretary of the League, arrived in Quebec with a good-will party of nearly 200 members, to make a brief tour of Quebec and Ontario.

He will take charge of reorganization work in the Dominion and has brought with him hundreds of films which will form the nucleus of the League's library.

According to present plans the Toronto clearing depot will be in operation early in September. Sub-depots and libraries will be set up in other centres such as Saint John, Montreal, Winnipeg, Calgary and Vancouver.

The films, depicting many phases of life in the Old Country and other parts of the Empire, will be made available free of charge to public schools, universities, service clubs, community organizations and educational bodies. Sets of lantern slides with descriptive lectures are also to be released.

Cool Drinking Water

Possible To Have It Even In Hottest Weather

A drinking jug or canteen keeps remarkably cool when it is covered with a wet sack or cloth and hung where the sun and hot winds can strike it. In evaporating, the water in the cloth absorbs a large amount of heat, part of which is drawn from the water inside the jug. The more rapid the rate of outside evaporation, the cooler the water inside will keep. An occasional wetting of the cloth is necessary to maintain the evaporation.

Alkali Disease

Chemists in South Dakota Wage War Against Insidious Poison

Chemists are battling against a deadly poison in an effort to make farming profitable on a wide area of western South Dakota land which bears selenium.

The element in the soil produces the commonly-called "alkali disease" which results in blind staggers in horses and cattle and causes deformed, hairless pigs and distorted chickens. The animals absorb the toxin from plants which have taken it from the soil.

Animals drop dead as soon as they are found eating the poisoned food. The public health service so far has reported no ill effects among humans eating foods produced from the soil.

THE CANADIAN ADVENTURE
TRIP OF BOB SIM, AN ONTARIO FARM BOY

No. 8 of a Series of 16 Letters

Has three male companions and is travelling by car again! Experiences storm, a thunder-bolt which ruins their breakfast; visit Callander and beat Daddy Blomme out of three autographs; see the foot of a thirty-foot cascade into this great blue inland sea. We climbed down the rocks to the water's edge, cooked supper and made camp for the night. We went to sleep in the deep woods with a feeling of exultation with the sound of tumbling water in our ears. At four in the morning we awoke alarmed by the sound of the sound of a multitude of mosquitoes in our ears. It was a fine contest of Beauty and Beast. We cooked breakfast: a knowledge of these religious and moral principles—they knew that they should not worship idols and should not kill—but here at Simul they learned that these principles were from God. Exodus 20:1-17. Devotional reading: Psalm 137:1-4.

North Shore of Lake Superior, (Special Despatch by Bob Sim).

Here we are, four automobile voyagers, perched on the edge of this greatest of all lakes, by name Superior. Last night we drove till dark and pulled into this cove. Deep down in a rocky gorge the dark waters of some nameless river poured with the foot of a thirty-foot cascade into this great blue inland sea. We climbed down the rocks to the water's edge, cooked supper and made camp for the night. We went to sleep in the deep woods with a feeling of exultation with the sound of tumbling water in our ears. "Sure if misery man could vex, 'Tis the best of our benighted necks."

The Trip So Far

From Toronto we went to Kingston, then to Ottawa, following the Ottawa River up to Petawawa to strike west from there to North Bay. This is the historic route followed by Canadian voyagers as they paddled their great freight canoes, laden with pemmican, from Montreal to the north end of the continent. When we reached Fort William we will join the route and follow it to Winnipeg. Callander was visited on the trip. At Sudbury we spent some time visiting the mines and smelters. We heard of the mine and sawprint at Sault Ste. Marie, and crossed over to the United States which was necessary to reach the north shore of Lake Superior. From Duluth we struck back to Canada striking the trans-Canada highway at Fort William and Port Arthur. Then it's westward ho, and it's to the mighty west we're bound.

A Glimpse At Quintland

Callander three years ago slept on the east shore of Lake Nipissing. A sawmill, a station, a filling station, a church, a school, a post office, and a little country doctor. Then the quintuplets came and this little grey-haired man saved their lives. To-day Callander, home of the world's most famous babies, is the world's most famous babies. It has several filling stations with special rates for five gallons of gasoline, a thriving tourist trade, and a few miles from Callander there lived a French community, on poor soil and with scant, miserable buildings. To-day the highway runs to the door of the Dionne home around which has grown a very healthy mushroom. This mushroom includes the Dufour hospital, with a special gallery where visitors may see the babies but not be seen by a five-acre field provides parking space; a boy sells lucky pebbles from the Dionne home; another boy collects twenty-five cents from those who want their pictures taken in his ox cart; Daddy Dionne has a car forty by fifty feet, and busy as a land office, Daddy himself, once a French-Canadian farmer two years ahead of the world, sits in a curtained room and collects twenty-five cents for his autograph.

He signs them by using carbon paper in our album, getting the signatures for the price of one. He is as well known as a tailor-made as a Montreal financier and appears to have no worries. His farm grows mud and weak hay. He never intimates a more prodigious soil—human guilefulness. Barnum said: "One is born every minute," and he was right, for they seemed to be all at Callander.

What about the babies, you say? Well, I am but a mere man. They were just five healthy, energetic, beautiful little girls, all identical, all charming, all very wealthy. Do you know a fairy story more preposterous, more grotesque, more absorbing than the story these five little French-Canadian ladies who stole the heart of the world?

I'm glad I wrote

The North Land

The North of Ontario is so vast that in comparison the South yokes to a cluster of villages. Railroad and highway cut across it here and there like strokes of a knife on an immense tablet. There is a mark here and there, a bright light, a vast stretch of rock and forest. It is also a rich land. Bare little villages grow up here and there as men go about the business of cutting timber and extracting metal from the hills. The villages may die, sinking back into the solitude of the North. It may grow into a great ugly growing town like Sudbury.

At Sudbury, we visited the mines and the smelting plant. We did not go underground but we saw the smelting operations. Nickel is much in demand to-day, is the chief product of the mines. Wages are high, men are being hired every day, money is plentiful. Yet it looks like a slum, compared to Annapolis Royal in Nova Scotia. In an area of about twenty acres five thousand people are crowded, often a whole family crowded into one room. Children play in the streets, and the streets would be small for a village. But it is growing at the rate of three thousand a year, and houses are being built in trees in China. Some day it will mature, acquiring liquidity and playfulness; to-day it is a real mining town.

On To Winnipeg

At Winnipeg we will get our first mail since leaving. We will get our first shirts washed, have a bath, sleep in a clean bed, then strike west. On to and our car. And where we'll land nobody knows.

GOD GIVES LAWS TO A NATION

Golden text: Thou shalt love the Lord thy God with all thy heart, and with all thy soul, and with all thy mind. . . Thou shalt love thy neighbor as thyself. Matthew 22:37, 38. Lesson: Exodus 19:1-21. Devotional reading: Psalm 137:1-4.

Explanations And Comments

The Preface to the Commandments, Exodus 20:1, 2. God spoke all these words, saying, We call "these words" the Ten commandments, or Decalogue. These are the religious and moral principles—they knew that they should not worship idols and should not kill—but here at Simul they learned that these principles were from God. Exodus 20:1-17. Devotional reading: Psalm 137:1-4.

2. I am Jehovah thy God, who brought thee out of the land of Egypt, out of the house of bondage. 3. Thou shalt have no other gods before me.

4. Thou shalt not make unto thee a graven image, nor any likeness of anything that is in the shape of man, that is in the earth beneath, or that is in the water under the earth: 5. Thou shalt not bow down to them, nor serve them; for I, Jehovah thy God am a jealous God, visiting the iniquity of the fathers upon the children, upon them that hate me, 6 and showing lovingkindness unto thousands of them that love me and keep my commandments.

7. Thou shalt not take the name of Jehovah thy God in vain; for he that taketh his name in vain, I will not hold him guiltless that taketh his name in vain.

8. Remember thy sabbath day, to keep it holy. 9. Six days hath thou labor, and do all thy work; 10 but the seventh day is the sabbath of Jehovah thy God; in it thou shalt not do any work, thou nor thy son, nor thy daughter, nor thy servant, nor thy maid-servant, nor thy cattle, nor thy stranger that is within thy gates: 11 for in six days Jehovah made heaven and earth, the sea, and all that in them is, and rested the seventh day: wherefore Jehovah blessed the sabbath day, and hallowed it.

12. Honor thy father and thy mother; that thy days may be long in the land which Jehovah thy God giveth thee. 13. Thou shalt not kill. 14. Thou shalt not commit adultery. 15. Thou shalt not steal. 16. Thou shalt not bear false witness against thy neighbor. 17. Thou shalt not covet thy neighbor's house, thou shalt not covet thy neighbor's wife, nor his man-servant, nor his maid-servant, nor his ox, nor his ass, nor anything that is thy neighbor's.

Miss A. E. Cox, superintendent of the Telephone Exchange staff in London, has retired after more than 40 years' service.

Girl operators, she says, speak much better than they used to be, but do not spell any better.

When she began work at the first Port Office telephone exchange in the City the pay was 10s. a week.

She has ended on a salary of 1600 a year. She was one of a dozen girls employed then; now there are 9,000.

Lighted Highways

Lighting Carried Out On Extensive Scale In United States

Highway lighting has been carried out on an extensive scale in the United States and is said to be producing worthwhile results. It is a well-known fact that the bulk of motor accidents occur at night and it is claimed that lighted highways play an important part in cutting down the accident totals.

One recognizes, of course, that it would cost a good deal of money to illuminate America's highway system. At the same time, it is claimed that cheap power are available, and the motoring public, through taxation, is contributing plenty of cash to make the improvement possible.

A Story of the Irish on the

"Oh, it means," said I, "they think all us Catholics should be hanged. The ladder is the step up to a gallows, and the rope has a noose at the end of it."

The child felt quite distressed. We both knew all about the hanging business.

"But what have you done wrong, Paddy?" she asked me.

"Oh, don't worry," said I, "we're all poor miserable sinners."

"Well, Paddy," she advised me, "I do wish you would get converted, and be saved, and join our church."

"Have you been converted yourself?" I asked her.

"No," she told me, "I have tried and tried, Paddy—but it won't take!"

"Sure," I said, "I know you are not converted, or you wouldn't be pinching peppermint drops on your Aunt Letitia."

"But you won't tell?"

"No," I said, "I'm the worst!"

Another visitor we had shortly afterward was a stylish young belle from Markham Township.

On the first Sunday afternoon after her arrival, three young gentlemen of the neighborhood strolled up separately to the Marshall house.

Curiously enough, they had all suddenly been struck with the notion, at church that morning, of seeing how our crops were getting along.

They were all invited in, of course, and, in addition to Miss Letitia, I had three guests.

It is, I wonder, that a self-conscious young lady, on such an occasion, gives vent to so much girlish laughter—unless it is to show her teeth?

The gathering became quite dull and formal, as might be expected.

The guinea hens, those noisy harbingers of company coming, set up their infernal, peevish chatter of "buck wheel! buck wheel!"

Betty went to the door to look out.

"Here," she exclaimed, turning to me, "I suppose he is Johnson Potter up the lane. I suppose he is coming, too, to see how our crops are!"

I mention such trifling things as the visit of this marriagable girl to the Mono farm because the only theme I have in this simple narrative is the homely and commonplace in the lives of pioneer Irish folk on the Ontario countryside. And a poor job it is! If I were able, I would make it as clear cut as the toll of their dinner bell, and as transparent as a sheet of polished glass.

They are all dead and forgotten; but such simple, natural, wholesome lives make the history of the country where they bodies lie. God bless them! They are all off on the way of truth now.

By his more aggressive tactics, Potter won out in that afternoon contest. He got his spoke in first, and, yes, Miss Matilda would be charmed to go for a buggy ride with Mr. Potter the very next evening—d.v. as to the weather. The result, in brief, was that Potter not only had a good many meals at the Marshall table, where he proved a capital trencherman, but he got a wife who made good meals ready for him for the rest of his life.

Young Betty was simply fascinated with Miss Matilda's charming ways. Straightaway the child was primping about with her head tilted to one side. She was giggling incessantly without any apparent cause, and showing her teeth. The young belle was actually doing around in a day dream; and her dream, of course, was that she was the beautiful Miss Matilda Lea. When I noticed the young actress was getting picky and fastidious about her virtues, I made it no doubt as to "open my mind to her on the side."

"Cut it out, Betty," I told her. "We all know you have a stomach!"

"Well," she said, "Matilda doesn't eat much."

"No," I replied, "not while Potter is around; but did you ever notice how she gorges herself in the back-kitchen?"

Next spring's plowing time, the yellow, wide-boarded floor of the kitchen became Betty's constant care.

At all hours, I would find the skinny youngster on her knees, scrubbing the great expanse and giving it the dicks. And she was strongly of the opinion, seemingly, that it was my dirty boots that made most of this scrubbing necessary.

For some unaccountable reason, she did not notice the tracks Bob and the children made, or the mud her father and the other men trailed about in their boots. But if she spied any dirt on my boots, there was a riot immediately.

"Just look at the dirt on Paddy's feet, Ma!" she would exclaim in despair, as she brushed a wisp of stray hair back into place from her sweetly forehead. "Do I have to scrub this floor again for that dirty clodpoper?"

"Please pass me a bit to eat in the shed," I would say to Mrs. Marshall. "It is better to dwell in the corner of the house than with brawling women in a wide house!"

"But he doesn't seem to care, Ma, how much work he makes me!"

And she had the pinch of the argument on me, because from the time she was seven, Betty had always darned my socks for me, and seen to it that they patched up my clothes and kept my things shipshape.

"Well, Betty," I said to her at last, "you'd better make me carpet slippers, and by the grace of God, I'll never touch your dirty old floor without them."

And the result was she made me an awkward-looking pair, which caused a lot of hilarity in the household. And I kept my promise—but only in muddy weather.

But the carpet slippers only served to transfer the scene of hostilities from the yellow floor to the bench by the back kitchen door. All my life long I have had trouble with my feet in warm weather. So in the evenings that summer, I made a practice of soaking them very carefully and deliberately in a bucket of rain-water and soft soap. And I found a comfortable place to do this was by the bench at the back kitchen door.

But young Betty was raising morning glories and wild cucumber, and the story I made, and declared the caustic in it hurt her flowers.

Where the hired man is to wash his feet has always been one of the weighty problems in Ontario agriculture. Betty insisted that I do it elsewhere. I held to the opinion my feet should be washed close to the rain barrel.

These great issues were joined and went down to trial one summer's evening. Betty's temper had got to the better of her and she was tongue-thrashing me in an outrageous manner. I slushed the soapy water in her direction, which sent her screaming round the corner of the house. I put a dipper of fresh water in my foot bath, and, as she returned to the fray, I wigged my toes at her. She promptly let a piece of broken crockery drive at me with one of those underarm, left-hand swings that should in old-fashioned have put it clear over the roof, but the sharp edge of it caught me a nasty dig on the base of my toes at the rise of the instep. A lovely squirt of blood shot out. I always did bleed like a stuck pig. It was a grand shot for an eleven-year-old girl to make.

"Now, look what you've done!" I demanded. "You've hurt my foot, you, you little she-devil!"

And I tipped out the colored water to show her the great quantity of blood I was losing.

"Oh! Paddy," the child exclaimed, "I didn't mean to hurt you so real bad as that!"

"Well, look what you've done," I warned her. "You've killed me entirely."

And the next moment, I had a curious mixture of tears and toweling, and bleeding foot on my hand.

"Oh! Paddy, I'm very sorry," the youngster sobbed, "because I love you so!"

"You show it, don't you?" said I, "murdering me in cold blood."

"Oh! Paddy, dear," she said, "I didn't really mean to hurt you, because when I grow up, and have long skirts, I'm going to marry you, Paddy, and have babies for you."

"You show it, don't you?" said I, "murdering me in cold blood."

"Oh! Paddy, dear," she said, "I didn't really mean to hurt you, because when I grow up, and have long skirts, I'm going to marry you, Paddy, and have babies for you."

"Oh, no, you're not!" said I.

"Ladies with long skirts have babies for their husbands," she informed me, and her dream.

"Yes!" says I, "but God sends them."

"Well," she pondered, "couldn't He send me a nice red-headed one for you, Paddy?"

What It Really Means

Suspended Sentence Gives Offender Chance To Go Straight

The magistrate suspended sentence. Quite often we read something to that effect in accounts of trials; and a good many, reading, dismiss the matter from their minds with the remark: "Well, that's disposed of" or "That chap got off easy." They think, evidently, just "suspended sentence" was the last of the case. Often, too, it seems that those who have been released on suspended sentence have the same idea.

That is entirely a mistake. A suspended sentence is just what the name implies: a sentence that is suspended, that hangs over the offender. So long as he behaves himself, nothing further is done about it; but if he offends again during the term for which sentence has been suspended the first offence is cited against him in case of conviction and the penalty is imposed in addition to that for the second offence.

Suspended sentence does not mean that the judge or magistrate has placed the offender in the position of one who has not broken the law. If he does not take his lesson to heart and breaks the law a second time the magistrate may remind him that he has broken faith. "Authority," the magistrate may say, "has given you a chance to go straight. Only one thing can be done with a person who will not behave; it is high time for you to learn that the way of the transgressor is hard. Society will stand for only so much."

Suspended sentence, then, is not a clearance; nor is it a sign of weakness on the part of the authorities. It is a manifestation of the desire of the law to give one who has slipped a chance to get back on the straight road—a favor which too often is not appreciated.

Man In The Moon

Eastern Editor Has No Wish To Make The Lunar Trip

Much is said now and again of attaining altitude by means of rockets and experiments continue to be made along that line. They tell us that by this means it would be possible to reach the moon, and now it is said, with this new outfit invented by the British Air Ministry, it would carry a man safely through the atmosphere between that dead world and ours.

This talk of the moon always leaves us cold. What would a man do if he did get there. And how would he get back if he succeeded in reaching our world's never failing satellite? He needs must have the engine to send him sky-rocketing back and he could hardly take it with him. For ourselves though they invent a super rocket and suits to navigate the distant ether, it could never tempt us to leave good old terra firma.—Halifax Chronicle.

Pine Falls Paper Mill

Report That Capacity To Be Increased From 49 To 300 Tons Daily

Manitoba's Pine Falls pulp and paper mill will be improved to the extent of $813,000, increasing capacity of the mill from 49 tons to 300 tons daily, officials announced at Winnipeg recently.

The expansion program would result in reduction in cost of newsprint by $17.2 a ton.

The proposed expenditure is part of the Abitibi Power and Paper Company's reorganization plans to be presented to bondholders of the company on Oct. 15. Pine Falls is a subsidiary of Abitibi.

Half of the $813,000 will be spent on the mill, $20,000 is to go toward townsite improvements. Appropriation of the remaining $186,500 was not revealed.

About Speed Laws

With Ontario's new speed law in force, comparison with other provinces may be interesting. They are: Prince Edward Island, Careful and Prudent; Nova Scotia, Reasonable and Proper; New Brunswick, Quick and Safe; Manitoba, Careful and Prudent; Saskatchewan, when passing, 35; Alberta, 30; British Columbia, 30, or at rates prescribed by highway signs. Ontario certainly is liberal in her allowance to motorists.—Owen Sound Sun-Times.

The Job For Him

A salesman in a Montreal firm was dismissed because of a lack of courtesy to customers. A month later the sales manager spotted him walking about in a police uniform. "I see you have joined the force, Jones," said the sales manager.

"Yes," replied Jones. "This is the job I have been looking for all my life. On this job the customer is always wrong!"

We'd like to pay our taxes with a smile but they insist on cash.

New Tax Levied For Education

Saskatchewan School Grants Increased July 1 With Education Tax Effective August 2

Government school grants in the province of Saskatchewan have been increased as of July 1, this year. The total aggregate increase for all schools is approximately $800,000.

Public schools will benefit to the extent of 50c per day per room. A one-room rural school, which last year received a government grant of $1 per room for 200 days—$200 a year—will now receive $1.50 per room for 200 days—$300 a year—an increase of 50 per cent. A two-room school, with, of course, receive double this amount.

High schools and continuation schools, under the new schedule, will benefit to the extent of $100 per year per room.

The legislature also appropriated $200,000 for loans to school districts for the purchase of new equipment, the arrears of teachers' salaries incurred prior to January 1, 1935.

Ever since the present government took office, states Premier Patterson, "it has had as one of its first objectives the restoration of school grants to the figure they were prior to 1932." He also adds that, because of continued crop failures and consequent increased financial burden upon the government, it became impossible to make any increase in the grants.

The legislature, however, at the last session decided that "the needs of education warranted the imposition of a new tax for educational purposes." This provided the opportunity for the government to increase the grants as stated.

"The entire proceeds of this tax will be placed in a separate bank account and will be used exclusively for education services."

Premier Patterson's complete statement follows:

"The schools of the province of Saskatchewan are maintained largely by local taxes levied against real estate and supplemented by government grants. Ever since the present government took office it has had as one of its first objectives the restoration of school grants to the figure they were prior to 1932. This would entitle the province to a reduction in local tax levies for school purposes. With continued crop failures the finances of the province could not permit any increase of school grants and at the last session of the legislature it was decided that the needs of education warranted the imposition of a new tax, earmarked for educational purposes, which would provide funds for increased grants."

At the session the School Grants Act was amended increasing school grants as from July 1st and the Education Tax Act was passed to come into force on proclamation. This provision was included in the act to give the government an opportunity of making a full study of administration methods and of setting up the necessary machinery for the collection of the tax with the minimum of difficulty.

At the session an exhaustive study has been made of the operation of a similar tax in the province of Alberta, and a number of the states of the Union, the administrative methods followed in each have been analyzed and from the information thus secured regulations have been drafted and organized for the operation of the act has been decided upon. It should be remembered that the Legislature passed the act to come into force on proclamation so that its administration might be fully and properly organized before the tax was imposed. By consolidation of a number of revenue branches of various departments it will be possible to increase the grants to the extent of $800,000 with very little increase in staff and ultimately it is intended to have all the major revenue branches under one administration.

Because of the crop conditions in the Province this year, some suggestions have been made that the imposition of the tax should be delayed. The government has given careful consideration to these suggestions but after taking all the factors into account the government has decided to advance as a reason for not imposing the tax made it all the more necessary that the act be kept in operation. There will be this year a larger number of schools than ever before and the government will have difficulty in financing and the increased grant will be absolutely necessary to enable the districts to cope with the larger grant the problems of education are going to be sufficiently serious during the coming year and I am certain that the large majority of the people are prepared to support the government in its keeping the schools open."

"It was decided, therefore, to proclaim the act to come into force on Monday, August 2nd. The government asks the co-operation of the people of Saskatchewan in order to maintain our educational institutions in Saskatchewan. People do not like taxes and neither do governments, but we all have a responsibility to the future citizens of the Province who are now being educated and trained in our schools. The entire proceeds of this tax will be placed in a separate bank account and will be used exclusively for educational services."
